NOT INVITED.

The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes: The Vanderbilts had no part in that ceremony, except that it was deemed imperative that Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt give his daughter away. John D. Rockefeller and his family were not bidden, nor was it possible to point to the Goulds in the church and say "at last." For the Vanderbilts in their social relations, or rather in their social relations with the Goulds, display much of the disposition which Mrs. Astor for many years held toward the Vanderbilts, until they at last conquered her and have now practically superseded her.

The reasons which led to the absence of the representatives of three of the four richest American families, do not at all alter the fact that at a wedding, presumably characteristic of the riches of America, the great riches of America were absent, with one exception, the Astors. Yet it is said by those who should know that had Mr. Waldorf Astor been in this country it is very doubtful whether or not he would have been bidden.

That John D. Rockefeller and his family had no part in this ceremonial of course occasions no surprise. The richest of Americans and his family have no lot nor care for those who use riches for luxurious display. Mr. Rockefeller never criticizes. Others may do for him or his. His family have delights of their own, which cause weariness to themselves or heart burnings to others. Personally, when he is with men of affairs, he receives those tributes which are reserved for those who possess the power of enormous wealth, but even for that he seems not to care.

That the Goulds were passed by while many others whose social claim is based solely on their wealth were chosen as seemed to those who know something of the traditions of the Vanderbilt family a little strange. The scars left by the battle which the young and little Jay Gould fought to victory with the old and giant-like Commodore never healed. The Commodore's life-long resentment toward the only man, and he a younger, who ever beat him in a financial battle, has been, it is believed, inherited by the family. For that reason it did seem to some who know Mrs. Vanderbilt that she might take this occasion to emphasize her relations to Mr. Vanderbilt's family by bidding the Goulds. She seems to have regarded the refusal to bid any of the Vanderbilts as sufficient.

Nevertheless, it is the impression here that before very long Mr. Gould will conquer social recognition from the Vanderbilts, even as they at last brought Mrs. Astor most graciously to them. For himself, Mr. Gould cares no more for social life than Mr. Rockefeller, and his brothers are like him in this respect. But Mrs. Gould is understood to be ambitious for her children, and she is a woman of keen enough understanding to know that what less or wealth than that controlled by her husband had done for others who have persistently knocked at society's door may surely be secured by her for hers when she chooses to make use of her power.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5,000 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by L. Stabler & Co., druggists.

"Turn the rascals out!"—the familiar party-cry—may be applied to microbes as well as to men. The germs of the disease that lurk in the blood are "turned out" by Ayer's Sarsaparilla as effectively as the old postmasters are displaced by a new administration.

Winter Excursion Tickets.
On November 1st the Pennsylvania Railroad Company placed on sale excursion tickets to all prominent winter resorts in New Jersey, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Cuba. The tickets are sold at the usual low rates.

The magnificent facilities of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with its many connections, make this the favorite line for winter travel. An illustrated book, descriptive of winter resorts, and giving routes of travel and rates for tickets, will be furnished free on application to ticket agents.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

on the land, ALL THAT TRACT OF LAND situate, lying and being in the county of Alexandria, Virginia, and which is bounded as follows, to-wit: Beginning at a stake forty poles north-west and a half degrees east from a stone placed on the west side of the Georgetown road; thence north eighty-two and a half degrees west twenty-four poles to a stake near a spring; thence north eighty-seven degrees west twenty poles to a stake and pile of stones; thence north forty-eight degrees west twelve and three-quarter poles to a stake and pile of stones; thence south eighty-four and a half degrees west sixty-nine poles to a stake north seven and three-fourths degrees west twenty-seven and a half poles to a stake and pile of stones near a marked chestnut oak; thence north eighty-four and a half degrees west twenty-four and a half poles to the place of beginning and containing thirty-four acres, one road and fifteen perches, and being the same land conveyed by William Ager and others to Monroe L. Fox by deed duly recorded in the County Clerk's office of Alexandria county, Virginia.

This beautiful tract of land is situated about two and a half miles southwest of Washington city, on that magnificent range of hills just south of the historic Arlington estate, and is a prominent and imposing place for a grand suburban home for a person desiring to attend to business in the city and to reside a short distance in the country, or it would make a valuable and accessible subdivision, being about one-half mile from the Mount Vernon Electric Railway and about three-quarters of a mile from the Arlington railroad from Washington to Alexandria. It is situated high and healthy, is well drained, and is in a good and rapidly growing community, near churches and schools, and possesses one of the finest views around the National Capital. The whole city of Washington and the Potomac river for a space of eight miles in length, shows up in majestic and panoramic beauty from this most favored location.

Terms of Sale: Cash sufficient to pay off a bond $2,500 with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from August 17th, 1894, and the balance of the purchase price to be paid in installments of $1,000 each, the first installment to be paid on the day of sale, and as to the residue terms will be made known on the day of sale.
